

LINDEN

No, it's not a district of Hannover...

... on the contrary, Hannover is an appendage of Linden, as everybody in Linden will tell you. To the right and left of Limmerstrasse and all around the market square there is an abundance of vibrant, energetic life. The streets are teeming with students, academics, eccentrics and people who regard life as an art form. Pubs, cafés, kiosks and restaurants are to be found on every corner, with Béi Chéz Heinz, Café Glocksee and the Kulturzentrum Faust marking out the party boundaries. Linden is a real insider's tip for shoppers: there are lots of little boutiques and shops offering the kind of trendy styles and accessories that can only be found in such a hip district.

Lindener Berg

Linden's "mountain" may rise a mere 35 metres above the "Linden baseline"; but as everybody knows, size is not everything, and it's well worth climbing up to the top, where you can relax in the beer garden, stroll through the old cemetery or the allotments, and enjoy the breathtaking view from the Observatory or a concert in the legendary Jazz Club.
